Single-sided Systems

It doesn't get any easier than this. Most single-sided systems are lightweight and compact, making them easy to transport or to stow away. Choose a system that prints full-color or monochrome-only cards. Many also offer upgrades to magnetic stripe encoding, Ethernet, and more.

Dual-sided Systems

Dual-sided printers offer the flexibility of printing on one or both sides of a card in a single print cycle. Print full-color on both sides of your cards or print full-color on one side, monochrome on the other. Expand the capabilities of your cards by including magnetic stripe or smart card encoding.

Laminating Systems

Printers capable of lamination provide your printed cards added durability and protection from the wear that occurs over time, which is especially important if your cards will be swiped. Choose clear lamination or step up to holographic lamination for varying levels of visual security as well as protection from card tampering.

Reverse Transfer Systems

Cards printed with reverse transfer technology provide vibrant photographic quality images. Plus, this technology allows you to print on uneven card surfaces such as smart cards and access control cards. Most reverse transfer printers also offer a lamination option for the most durable and secure cards.
